*** WORLD WAR II POLISH GENEALOGY – USED FOR HISTORY BUT OFTEN NEGLECTED FOR GENEALOGY *****

by Paul S. Valasek, D.D.S. <hallersarmy@aol.com>

Everyone with any inkling of history can understand the effects World War II had on Poland, small or large, whether causing problems or resulting from actions taken by others. During the whole period 1939-1945, most if not all Polish-American families had relatives living in Poland. I did, on both sides of my Polish heritage, but I only heard some stories that were vague about “relatives” suffering under the yoke of war and pain. These family members were not known firsthand by my family but through letters and cards; and at that time, other than by written correspondence, with and without photos, Polish Americans heard little to nothing about some of their cousins in the old country. Of course, after the war, displacement, devastation, and relocation was the norm. Many relatives who had been in our familial homes were no longer there.

As Polish-American genealogists do their research, we normally focus on immigration, which was heavy before World War I, then slowed and was restricted through the 1920s. After the 30s and 40s, it came to a grinding halt; and under Communism, the options of Poles to visit America, let alone move there, were just about nil. Thus we have a large gap of family history from the mid-20th century until current days. One good thing is, now that it’s quite easy to visit Poland, we are discovering relatives throughout that country and reuniting with them. This happened to me; but every time I go back, more and more of the older relatives are dying off, and with them, their stories of surviving World War II.

Last year, I had the special privilege to visit and do research at the Holocaust Museum in Washington, D.C. Now, the popular impression—and I shared it—is that the Holocaust Museum basically highlights Jewish life and death through the war. I quickly found out otherwise. With more records being released and made available every day, it seems, the story of the war and its atrocities are coming forward for examination by everyone, not just scholars and historians. Even though our Polish-American family branches may have had no direct contact with Poland during the war years, those relatives who survived have information. That is why we need to continue our trees forward, not just backwards.

Many sites on the Internet now list archives and resources where documentation of the war years is held, both inside Poland and the rest of the world. Jewish researchers have been using them extensively and are quite familiar with the process. My experience is that most Polish-American researchers have done little or no research for this time frame, and know little about the use of its material. A brief look at this site will give you a basic idea of what is available.

<http://www.archiwa.gov.pl/memory/index.php?va\_lang=en>

If you go to a specific topic, there are many examples of what material is available. This link, for instance, leads to material from Auschwitz-Birkenau:

<http://www.archiwa.gov.pl/memory/sub\_listakrajowa/index.php?fileid=021&va\_lang=en>

From just one page listed as an example, you can easily see the value of documents in genealogical research. Here are the names from the register of the punishment detail.

*** LETTERS TO THE EDITOR *****

Subject: Re-establishing contact with relatives in Poland

Editor—This question from a reader illustrates the theme of Paul’s article.

My husband's grandfather emigrated from Poland in 1906. Up until 1938-1939, he corresponded with family members in Poland. After 1939 all letters stopped. After the end of World War II, he again tried to write to his family in Poland. His letters were never answered or returned.

Is there any way to find out if his family was killed during World War II? Are there lists of individuals killed in the war? My husband's great-parents were Paul and Anna Buszynski. Anna's maiden name was Kozlowski. She had a first marriage where her surname was Glaudel. His grandfather had a sister and brother who remained in Poland, their names were Vincent Buszynski and Mary Buszynski. We believe that there was also a first cousin Peter (Petra?) who served in the Polish army. We believe that the family originated in Naruciany, but we are not sure what their last known address was. Any help you could give us would be greatly appreciated.

Editor—I told Juliet I don't know the answer, but I'll be very surprised if some of our readers can't give her useful leads.

Subject: Google's Project 10<sup>100</sup>

I think you might be interested in this. A year ago, Google asked for ideas of (relatively) low-cost projects that could benefit the most people in the world and they would end up funding a few of them. The 154,000 ideas have been reviewed and consolidated into 16 do-able projects. It's time to vote for the one you think would help the most people. You can only vote once and voting ends Oct. 8. Read the FAQ for background info.

Chris Elias <address withheld, editor will forward any responses>

Editor—Here's the note Chris forwarded. Learn more about the project here:
<<http://www.project10tothe100.com/>>

Hello everyone,

It's time to vote!

Last year, Project 10<sup>100</sup> invited the world to submit ideas to help as many people as possible. We received over 154,000 submissions, which we narrowed down to our favorites.

Now, you're invited to view the ideas and vote for the ones you think will help the most people.

Our advisory board will use your votes to identify the best ideas for further consideration, and we've committed $10 million to make up to 5 of them a reality.

Hurry, voting ends October 8, 2009.

Thanks for your help. Please vote! And may those who help the most win.

*** APG HONORS LORETTO SZUCS *****

Editor—This an excerpt from an announcement that appeared in a recent issue of Eastman's Online Genealogical Newsletter. The whole announcement, which can be read at <http://blog.eogn.com/eastmans\_online\_genealogy/2009/09/apg-honors-five-members.html>, was written by the Association of Professional Genealogists (APG).

WESTMINSTER, Colo., September 24 – The Association of Professional Genealogists (APG) honored five members for outstanding contributions and achievements at the 2009 Federation of Genealogical Societies (FGS) Conference held September 2-5 in Little Rock, Arkansas.

APG named Loretto Dennis Szucs as the recipient of the APG Professional Achievement Award. The award was created in 2007 to recognize a record of exceptional professional achievement with contributions to the field of genealogy through individual excellence and ethical behavior. Szucs has been involved in genealogical research, teaching, lecturing, and publishing for more than thirty years. Previously employed by the National Archives, she is currently executive editor and vice president of community relations for Ancestry.com. She has served on many archives and genealogical boards, and was founding secretary of the FGS. Currently, she serves as a director on the Board of the FGS....

Editor—Loretto, or Lou, as she likes to be called, has made enormous contributions to genealogy, and has spoken at many events, including the recent PGSA Conference. Nor is she a “newby”: an article of hers appeared in the Fall 1982 issue of PGSA's Newsletter. If you haven't heard of her and her books, well, you're missing out on one of the most informed and helpful people in the whole field of genealogy. It's good to see her getting plenty of recognition; she's earned it.

*** AGREEMENT BETWEEN JRI-POLAND AND KIELCE-RADOM SIG *****

Editor—This announcement was sent out on 25 September, and I thought our readers should know of it, as it may effect some of you. You may not think it affects you, but then how do you know some of your ancestors weren't Jewish? In any case, it's always good news for all researchers when large amounts of info are made available.

On behalf of the board of Jewish Records Indexing Poland and the management of the Kielce-Radom Special Interest Group, I am pleased to make the following four-part announcement.

1. After many years of providing outstanding contributions to in-depth research of this area of Poland, the Kielce-Radom Special Interest Group Journal ceased publication of its hard-copy journal in 2004. During and since that time, the indices published in the Journal to many of the towns were transferred to Jewish Records Indexing-Poland and became available in the JRI-Poland online searchable database.

By virtue of the new agreement, the full extracts for tens of thousands of records from all towns, originally published in the K-R Journal, as well as thousands more extracts that had not yet been published, will be integrated into the JRI-Poland database and will be freely available and searchable online. These extracts were made from the records in the LDS microfilms of Polish-Jewish records.

2. The K-R SIG web pages have now been integrated into the JRI-Poland Website and all information related to the K-R SIG data is now available through a thumbnail link at the bottom of the JRI-Poland home page at <<http://www.jri-poland.org>>.

3. All editions of the K-R SIG Journal have been scanned and are now online on the JRI-Poland web site. These journals may be freely downloaded as searchable PDF files.

4. To benefit past subscribers to the K-R SIG Journal and all researchers with an interest in the towns in the former Kielce and Radom Gubernia, and as part of the closing of its accounts, the management of the K-R SIG has made a generous grant to JRI-Poland to be used for the funding of records from these areas.

The grant funds have enabled JRI-Poland to complete the funding for the following towns originally indexed under the JRI-Poland / Polish State Archives project. The data for these towns is now searchable online.

I would like to take this opportunity to extend our heartfelt appreciation to Warren Blatt, founding editor of the Journal, and K-R SIG Advisory Group members Debra Braverman and Carol Isaak, who made the decision to entrust JRI-Poland with their valuable work.

At the same time, I would like to offer special thanks to Hadassah Lipsius and Meira Puterman, who had the major task of adapting the K-R SIG Web pages (and PDF links) to the JRI-Poland Website and to JRI-Poland.

Also to Database Manager Michael Tobias, who processed all the new data so quickly for this special launch.

Stanley Diamond

On behalf of the Board of JRI-Poland and the K-R SIG Management.

PRESENTATIONS:

HELP I'M STUCK! - How to deal with corrupted Polish/American names & Locality spellings and finding their town in Poland.

HAMBURG PASSENGER LISTS and POLICE RECORDS - There is more to Hamburg records than meets the eye. How to find your ancestors in Poland, using records of other people who emigrated at a different time.

GAZETTEERS, WEBSITES AND MAPS - Records are catalogued by the locality that created them. Since there are many villages belonging to a parish, it is essential to use gazetteers to find the parish for a given village name. This presentation covers not only the online Meyers gazetteer of the German Empire, which modern Poland was half, but also other online gazetteers, maps and resources.

WHERE ARE WE HEADING? Family History Centers, Public Libraries, Historical Societies and the New FamilySearch Site - An orientation on the LDS Family History Department, including changes that affect us. The remaining time will be for questions and answers.

MEETING OF THE EAST EUROPEAN GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY (EEGS)

7:00 - 9:30 p.m.

Millennium Library, Buchwald Room, 2nd floor

251 Donald St.

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada

Sean Patterson will present “Intersecting Histories, Unacquainted Narratives” on Ukrainian-Mennonite Relations During the Russian Revolution. The talk is based on research for his Masters History thesis at the University of Manitoba. He describes it thus: “From 1917-1921 the Russian revolution bled into civil war producing large vacuums of power particularly on the periphery of the former Russian empire. In a unique turn of events, eastern Ukraine was established as a stronghold of support for anarchism. A peasant anarchist movement, led by the infamous Nestor Makhno, mercilessly swept from power the rural elite. Especially effected by Makhno’s raids were the Mennonite colonies, which were subjected to a series of massacres in the fall of 1919. What fueled the fury of the Ukrainian peasantry? What drove young Mennonites to pick up arms for the first time in their long pacifist history? And how have these experiences been integrated into the collective memory of Ukrainians and Mennonites alike?”

“CHICAGO STREET CAR MEMORIES”

MEETING OF THE POLISH GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY OF AMERICA

984 N. Milwaukee Ave., Chicago IL

Mr. Jeffrey Wien will be the guest speaker at our November 8, 2009 meeting.

The subject of the presentation will be Chicago Streetcar Memories, which will cover the highlights of the history of Chicago’s streetcars. The presentation includes movies of streetcars on Milwaukee Avenue and many other locations, including State Street Downtown. Mr. Wien also is knowledgeable of the “L,” and the electric interurbans that ran out of Chicago.

“Jeff Wien, 68, is a lifelong resident of Chicago. His interest in Chicago streetcars dates back to 1951 when he recalls riding an old Red streetcar. The demise of the streetcars came to his attention in the summer of 1956 on a trip to Riverview Amusement Park. In 1957, he began taking color movies of the remaining streetcars on the Clark-Wentworth route and rode and documented the last streetcar on June 21, 1958. He has also documented on film Chicago’s ‘L lines as well as other electric railways around Chicago since 1957.”

A question-and-answer will follow the program. Mr. Bradley Criss, the “Director” of “Chicago Streetcar Memories” will also accompany Mr. Wien. In addition, a DVD that traces the history of the development of the streetcar system in Chicago from 1859 until the last car operated on June 21, 1958 will be available at a special all inclusive rate of $30.00, a savings of $8.00 when compared to purchasing it from his Website at <<http://www.chicago-transport-memories.com>>.

On the GaliciaPoland-Ukraine mailing list, Jerzy Lucki wrote that the LDS Family History Library has added a valuable collection of items at this URL. “There are 265 microfilms relating to 5,776 separate collections of records containing the materials related to the documents and legal proceedings by which Polish nobles and foreign nobles confirmed nobility in the Austrian Kingdom of Galicia and Lodomeria between 1772 and 1918. They concern the whole of the Kingdom including Little Poland (Małopolska) and are organized by family. In many cases these records contain whole pedigrees that can be useful where no metrical records have survived. I’ve previously seen some of these materials and they do vary in quality and completeness and sometimes contain as little as we know who you are and in other cases are very extensive. There are among the poorly labeled miscellaneous documents lists of nobles and heraldic information.”

A follow-up note from “Joe” said, “I uploaded to the files section a spreadsheet that contains the information of the 5700+ records on this topic. When I get a chance. I’ll try to make it more user-friendly. Use Excel’s find command to location a name in Column A.” Note that you have to be a member of the list to access the Files section.

Finally, Jerzy answered a question about similar records for nobility in the other partitions. He said some records are available, but not in the FHL. “Earlier this year I learned that the records for about 1/3 of the former Rzeczypospolita are intact and untouched in the archives in Vilnius and can be photographed on-site at no cost. There are collections of records in Grodno, Minsk, Kiev and other places as the confirmations were done before local deputations in the Gubernias.”

She quoted from an article available at the above URL: “The Polish Armed Forces Memorial <<http://www.polishforcesmemorial.com/>> has been unveiled at the National Memorial Arboretum in Staffordshire, U.K. The monument is a tribute to the 120,000 Polish soldiers who fought under British command in World War Two, the largest formation being the Second Corps commanded by General Władysław Anders. The monument was unveiled by the Duke of Kent, and the ceremony was attended by the Duke of Westminster, Winston Churchill’s grandson, Baroness Kinnock, Minister of State for Europe and some 1, 500 invited guests.” If the above link doesn’t work, try this TinyURL: <<http://tinyurl.com/ydtjka4>>.

On the Posen list, Matthias Theiner posted this link to download the 1912 publication Verzeichnis der Ortsnamen-Änderungen in der Provinz Posen. Nach amtlichen Quellen im Auftrage der Historischen Gesellschaft für die Provinz Posen [Index to Name Changes in Provinz Posen. According to Official Sources, as Commissioned by the Historical Society for Provinz Posen]. This list can be a big help in trying to trace the bewildering changes of place names as used by Germans. He also suggested using another Website, <<http://www.territorial.de>>, which deals with changes in territory, administration, names, and so on, in areas ruled by Germany.

Günter Mielczarek posted a follow-up note, suggesting reference to another source on name changes in the so-called Warthegau or Reichsgau Wartheland, which was basically that part of Poland occupied by Germany in 1939: <<http://www.gross-wartenberg.de/vob/vob.pdf>>.

A recent issue of Nu? What’s New?, available at <<http://www.avotaynu.com/nu/V010N17.htm>>, announced plans to update Avotaynu’s Consolidated Jewish Surname Index (CJSI) in the next few months. This is a database that lets you find nearly 700,000 surnames that appear in different databases. These include most of the JewishGen surname databases, the surname books published by Avotaynu, and other databases. The search goes by the Daitch-Mokotoff Soundex System, which helps you find names that sound similar and thus bypass many of the problems caused by spelling variation. Though, naturally, it focuses primarily on surnames borne by Jews. It's a very useful resource, even for non-Jews. Many names borne by Jews were also borne by Christians (though often the exact derivation may differ). What's more, many of the same basic linguistic factors that affected Jewish surnames also affected Christians' surnames. So if you input a name you're looking for and having trouble finding, you may very well see a whole list of names that sound similar to it. That, in turn, may help you focus on looking for name versions you never thought to examine before. It takes very little time and effort, and can prove very helpful.

Cathy Duprey sent me this link. It has nothing to do with Polish genealogy, but I guess there's a Polish connection by way of Ukrainian history. It's a performance on the TV show "Україна має талант" [Ukraine's Got Talent] by Kseniya Simonova, who uses sand and light to tell stories. Here she recreates the invasion and occupation of Ukraine during World War II! The audience was overwhelmed, with many of them in tears. It won't have the same emotional impact on most of us, but it's still amazing to watch her in action.

Paul Valasek asked if we had ever mentioned this site, for the Austrian State Archives. I imagine we probably have, but I'm not sure. Even if we have, it certainly does no harm to mention it again.
